Since Coronavirus started spreading in the country, people have been afraid to leave their houses. I'm the only one working in the grocery department. In addition to that, I'm also looking after the rice, oil & pulse sections. I live far from work but I ensure that I reach work before time, especially during this difficult time.

When the lockdown was announced, my family was worried about me going to work. But I requested our seniors to arrange transportation for us which was immediately done. My colleagues and I have been working hard at the checkout counters to help our customers.

I have been working in the ALC department for 4 years now. I live 4kms away from work. Since Coronavirus started spreading, it has been difficult getting public transport to reach work. On such days, I walk all the way to work. In addition to my regular duties, I have also been helping out in the checkout section.

I work in the grocery department as an ATL. Since the curfew started a few weeks ago, I have been the only female employee coming in to work. During this difficult time, it is my duty to help our customers and make life a little easier for them.

I leave my 3 year old son & 11 month old daughter at home every day with my wife because my METRO family needs me at this time. Together with 2 more associates I have taken up the extra responsibility of ensuring every trolley is sanitized, temperature check is done for every customer & everybody sanitizes their hands before entering the store.

I leave my two young children at home every day to come into work. There's always this fear that I might take the disease back home to them but that in no way means that I can shirk off my responsibilities towards my job. I also pick up a colleague on my way to work. I love helping my customers out during this difficult time.

I live 30 kms away from the store and have to cross 7 checkpoints on my way to work. Yet I still try to reach the store early every day. We have had fewer employees coming in but we ensure that our customers receive the best service. Our customers need us now more than ever.

I came into work despite being on fast for Navratri because my customers needed me to be here. Considering the current situation, I have been coming into work every day. I also try to feed at least 2 to 3 needy people on a daily basis. I'm fortunate enough to help the ones in need.

I work as a promoter. Since Coronavirus started spreading, most of the promoters have taken time off from work. But I couldn't leave knowing our customers would need our help during this difficult time and I had to be present here for them. My colleagues call me Lady Singham.
